Bituminous Coal Operators Signing Up Code Today

DISCUSSION OF WAGES IS UNDER WAY

Fifteen Operators Gather in NRA Offices Today Ready to Sign New Code

40 HOUR WORK WEEK

Right of Miners to Organize Recognized; Minimum Wage Scale Set

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—(UP)—Bituminous coal operators today accepted a code of fair practice for their industry and began signing the document, with indications that practically all of the industry would be bound to the document by early afternoon.

Discussion of wage contracts between the United Mine Workers of America and operators of the Appalachian group were in progress, with efforts being made to reach an agreement simultaneously with approval of the coal code by President Roosevelt later in the day.

The signing of the code by individual operators was necessary because the code was not sponsored by any one organization or trade association. Fifteen operators gathered in the office of Donald Richberg, NRA general counsel, and the code was then circulated to the hotel where the main body of operators was meeting.

The stubborn coal problem, described by Administrator Hugh S. Johnson earlier in the summer as "the pineapple of this whole business," drew toward a settlement exactly three months to the day from time the industrial recovery act was signed.

The code will carry seven or eight groups of operators' signatures, with independent operators bringing the number of those signing to 50 or more. Deputy administrator K. M. Simpson asked the operators to complete the signing by 1 p. m.

Minimum Prices

The code in final form provides for fixing of minimum prices; Prescribes a maximum 40-hour work week; Sets basic minimum wages for underground workers ranging from $2.75 to $5.53 in 16 districts; Recognizes right of miners to organize; Creates regional and national

FATE OF DAVID LAMSON IS PLACED IN HANDS OF JURY

EX-GOVERNOR OF MISSOURI PASSES AWAY

Sam A. Baker Succumbs After Illness of 4 Years Due to Paralysis

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Sept. 16.—(UP)—Sam A. Baker, former Republican governor of Missouri, died at his home here early today.

He had been ill for years since a stroke of paralysis shortly after leaving office in 1929.

Baker was 58 years old.

Born in a Missouri village after his father's death, he began life as a rail splitter and section hand, and became successively a baseball player, school teacher, state superintendent of schools, and finally governor.

As a youth he worked his way through the Cape Girardeau (Mo.) Teachers' college and became a teacher in a one-room country school near his birthplace of Patermo, in Wayne county. He later held school posts at Joplin, Richmond and Jefferson City.

In 1918 he was elected state superintendent of schools. During his four years he was credited with classifying rural schools, raising the standards for teaching certificates and increasing the number of consolidated and high schools of the first class.

He was defeated for re-election in a Democratic landslide in 1922, but received so many votes that he was nominated for governor in 1924 over several more experienced candidates.

USE OF TOKENS TO FACILITATE TAX PAYMENTS

One-eighth Cent Token to Be Paid on Every Purchase of Five Cents

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 16.—(UP)—Both the "one-price plan" and the "breakdown system" now employed to collect the new retail sales tax, will be abandoned when merchants of California begin the use of tokens to facilitate collection of the levy, the state board of equalization announced today.

Use of the tokens was decided upon after a meeting early this week at which retail merchants from all parts of the state protested inequalities in present methods of tax collection. In order to clear up any misunderstanding regarding the board's decision to supervise the issuance of the "merchant money"—which will be in denominations of one-eighth cent—the board issued the following statement:

"To clarify the situation, the board desires to emphasize the fact that the effect of adopting the token system is to abolish the present 'breakdown system' as inaugurated by the merchants, and also the so-called 'one-price plan' where the tax was included in the sales price of the article.

"Both the 'breakdown system' and the 'one-price plan' are automatically abolished, effective when the tokens are coined and ready for distribution, as the board is insistent that no more than the exact 2-1/2 per cent tax provided by law shall be collected, and has so stated. Therefore, the tax cannot be incorporated in the price of articles sold, as the merchant would have no method of accounting which would clearly indicate that the correct tax—and no more—was collected.

"Of necessity the rule that will be adopted by the board must be prepared with extreme care to avoid legal difficulties, but the effect of the board's action, as stated, is to make possible collection of the exact tax levied by law and both the 'breakdown system' and the 'one-price plan' will be abandoned as soon as the tokens are in use."

NEGOTIATIONS ON DEBTS WILL BE IN OCTOBER

United States and Great Britain to Meet With - out Commitments

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—(UP)—The U. S.-British war debt negotiations, beginning here early in October, will start from "scratch."

No advance commitments have been given as to how much, if any, this country will reduce Britain's $4,000,000,000 obligation, it was learned today at the State Department.

Reports from abroad that Great Britain had reason to expect a 90 per cent reduction were described by State Department officials as groundless.

Certainly, officials added, no such drastic cut will be made. Even if President Roosevelt favored wiping out all but 10 per cent of the $4,000,000,000—which he does not—officials are convinced that Congress would not approve.

The United Press was informed last summer by British sources that London hoped to effect a settlement of its debt to the United States on the same ratio of reduction as was granted Germany on reparations by the Lausanne conference. Germany's obligations were cut 90 per cent.

But it was made clear at the time that the 90 per cent cut projected was merely a British aspiration—that it was not based on assurances from Washington.

Subsequent inquiry at the State Department elicited the reaction that British hopes were too high.

It was pointed out that the President's invitation to London to submit its case merely promised the view that this country would review the Baldwin debt settlement, and no reduction was promised.

However, the administration feels there is justice in the British plea for some reduction.

Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, special advisor to the Bank of England, is expected here around October 1. If and when it appears that an agreement can be reached, a British cabinet member is expected to hurry to Washington to conclude final terms.

Arguments Completed Early Today

Arguments Completed and Lamson Pales as Death Penalty Demanded

SAN JOSE, Calif., Sept. 16.—(UP)—David A. Lamson's fate was placed in the hands of the jury today at 11:18 a. m. the twenty-first day of his trial on charges of murdering his attractive wife in their Stanford campus home Memorial day.

Four possible verdicts were laid before the jurors. They may find Lamson guilty of first degree murder without recommendation, which means the death penalty; guilty of first degree murder with recommendation which means a life sentence; guilty of second degree murder; or not guilty.

After Superior Judge Robert P. Syer finished his formal charge, the seven men and five women retired to consider testimony presented during the four weeks of the trial.

The state's demand for the young defendant's death echoed in the jurors' ears as they filed from the courtroom. The defense answer that the prosecution had failed to link Lamson with his wife's death struck down his wife's death sentence with equal force.

Quarrels caused by jealousy led the Stanford press executive to strike down his wife as she stood naked in the bathroom of their home at Palo Alto, the state charged. And accidental fall in the tub caused her death, the defense replied.

Conservative Jury

It was a "conservative" jury that took the case under consideration. In its selection the defense strove to obtain women who were likely to be sympathetic toward the good-looking, curly-haired, collegiate defendant. The state sought jurors—either sex—who would accept circumstantial evidence, all the prosecution had in its case.

For at no time during the four weeks of the trial was any witness presented who said he saw Allene Thorpe Lamson, former Lamar, Mo., girl die.

The defendant claimed he found her dead in the bathroom an hour after he had drawn her bath and escorted her to the room. No other person apparently had seen her since her retiring the previous night. She slept alone that night because of illness. The state said the illness implied part of the "sex frustration" theory.

Blood in the room and about the house and similar stains on Lamson's clothing provided part of the prosecution case. Stains on an iron pipe, presented as the "murder weapon," offered another circumstantial link. Testimony of Lamson visits to Sacramento to see a blonde divorcee, Mrs. Sara Kelley, built up the structure of the jealousy motive. Statements that the defendant was seeking jobs simultaneously for his wife and Mrs. Kelley were laid before the jury.

Telling Blow

"What would his wife repulse his advances the night before the tragedy," thundered Prosecutor John Fitzgerald in one of the most telling blows of the trial.

NEW PRESIDENT OF CUBA SEEKS ADDED SUPPORT

Negotiates With Political Leaders in Effort to Solidify Factions

(Copyright, 1933, by the United Press)

HAVANA, Sept. 16.—(UP)—President Ramon Grau San Martin, his prestige mounting rapidly, today began new negotiations for the support of principal political leaders.

It was reported reliably that representatives of the student director which engineered the revolt that put Grau San Martin in office were in contact with American Ambassador Welles.

The Grau San Martin negotiations and the reported contacting with Welles, by far the most important developments of the "transitional president's" six-day regime, followed immediately upon the prompt suppression of a revolt in Pinar Del Rio province.

The first meeting of the political negotiators was held in the early hours this morning.

On one side were Grau San Martin, former professor of medicine at the National university, and three members of the student directory. It was the students and the enlisted men of the army that put him in office after deposing Provisional President Carlos Manuel De Cespedes.

On the other side were four veterans schooled in the intricacies of Cuba's turbulent politics. They were former president of Cuba, and Mario Menocal, leader of the Conservative party; Joaquin Martinez Saenz, leader of the powerful ABC revolutionary society and treasury secretary in the Cespedes cabinet, and Miguel Mariano Gomez, leader of the Marianistas party.

Menocal, Mendita and Saenz are definitely hostile to Grau San Martin. Mariano Gomez is neutral.

These four demanded that Grau San Martin resign in favor of a group of representatives of all political parties, who would decide whether to rename him or choose someone else to serve as president pending a constitutional assembly and formal elections.

Gratu San Martin, his position many times stronger than it was 24 hours ago, refused. He pointed out his quick suppression of the revolt of soldiers and civilians in Pinar Del Rio province as an indication of his strength.

He told the politicians, that his hold on the army was strong. It showed also, he said, that though his government is non-political, it had the backing of many sections of public opinion not concerned with party politics.

Bald Head Club Bars Use Of "Forelock"

"Why the very suggestion is intolerable," exclaimed A. Homer Fillows, former mayor of Danbury and president of the club. "We must seize this question by the forelock and—"

Peter Fitzhenry, Waterbury city comptroller and vice president of the bald heads interrupted.

"Be a little more careful in your selection of words, Homer," he advised. "You know we don't use the word forelock in this club."

ALL ISSUES CARRIED UP DURING DAY

Homestake Mining Leaps 25 Points to Set New All Time Record for Stock

LATE RALLY STAGED

More Than Million Shares Traded in Short Day; Repeal Stocks Strong

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—(UP)—Under leadership of mining shares, which leaped 1 to 15 points, the stock market staged a spirited rally in late trading today.

In the government announcement of $30.49 per ounce for gold—a peak since the government started establishing a gold price—served as the incentive to rally a market which had been dull and slightly stronger. Trading picked up and issue after issue shot into new highs.

There were a number of favorable factors, which had served to bring dull strength in early dealings. These included agreement on the coal code, an unchanged estimate on Youngstown district steel operations, a weaker dollar and steady commodity prices plus continuation of inflation talk. Then when the gold price came out, it served as a spark to ignite the market.

Metals Soar

Metals soared and in their wake came the rest of the market, repeat issues, leading industrials and some specialties. Only the utilities showed a tendency to hold back and even they, in most instances, erased early losses to substitute some gains.

New high after new high was scored among the metal shares. Homestake, the widest swinging member of the gold mining group, leaped more than 25 points to a new all time record. Federal mining jumped 15 points to a high of 80. U. S. Smelting, reaching 100 for 8 1/2 points gain. McIntyre Porcupine, American Smelting, Howe Sound, all allied in various sections of the mining industry, spread their strength into new peaks for the year.

Tickers Taxed

Tickers, after early dull tactics, began to be peevish to set down the quotations as traders plunged into the market.

Blocks up to 21,000 shares came out.

But the rest of the market was not neglected. Repeat stocks had a final whirl, National Distillers and U. S. Industrial Alcohol showed gains ranging to more than 4 points. Other issues of this division were strong.

Then came the SUGARS with Great Western advancing to a new high for the year and good gains coming in American and South Porto Rican. Tobaccos had a fling at good gains.

Industrials Jump

The industrial list had been slow to pick up but U. S. Steel, leader

RESUME TANGO GAME HEARING NEXT TUESDAY

Old County Ordinance Prohibiting Gambling May Be Invoked Here

PROVISIONS of an old county ordinance, passed in 1914, prohibiting gambling in any form, may be invoked by the district attorney's office in an effort to resist the petition of the operators of so called "tango" games for a superior court order prohibiting the county authorities from interfering with the operation of the game, it was learned today.

The hearing on the petition, which began yesterday afternoon before Superior Judge Homer C. Ames, was continued until 9:30 a. m. Tuesday morning at which time the attorneys for the county, named defendants in the case, will, in compliance with court instructions, present affidavits as to the manner in which the disputed game is being played, this to ascertain whether or not "tango" is a banking game. Under provisions of the state law, a banking game is held to be gambling and therefore prohibited by state law.

At the hearing held yesterday afternoon, attorneys for George S. Levine, Harry Stutz and C. Horowitz, petitioners for the restraining order, contended in their arguments before Judge Ames that the state in section 330 of the penal code envisions games that are considered gambling and that "tango" is not included, and therefore, even though "tango" is held to be a game of chance, is not prohibited if not enumerated in the list of forbidden games.

Deputy District Attorney Preston Turner, representing the county, argued that "tango" is purely a game of chance, there is no skill involved, and as a gambling game it is specifically prohibited. Turner also contended that it is a banking game.

Judge Ames said he would indicate his decision following the filing of affidavits describing the manner in which the game is played and operated, and added that gambling is not wholly illegal in California unless specifically prohibited by statute. In section 330, the judge remarked, the games prohibited are enumerated and "tango" is not mentioned.

The court announced, however, that if the district attorney's office could prove that "tango" is a banking game he would rule it gambling and deny the petition.

CANNERY WORKERS TO STRIKE MONDAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 16.—(UP)—A strike Monday of 16,000 California cannery workers was announced today by J. B. Nathan, business agent of the International Cannery Workers' union. The strikers will remain out until canners agree to pay an average of 30 cents an hour for piece work, Nathan said.

NRA headquarters has upheld the 30-cent scale, Nathan claimed. Preston McKinney, vice president of the Cannery league, said his organization would do nothing to avert the strike until advice from Washington is received.

"We've been paying on what is known as the 'make-up basis,'" said McKinney, asserting that all men employees are now being paid the NRA scale.

SELECTION OF 67 CAMP SITES MADE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—(UP)—Selection of 67 winter camp sites in 15 states was announced today by Director Robert Fechner of the civilian conservation corps. The camps replace those which will have to be abandoned because of severe weather.

Ten of the new camps will be in California. Locations of the California camps follow:

Five in Sequoia National park; one in Yosemite park; two in Death Valley National monument; one in Muir Woods National monument; one in Pinnacles National monument.

REFUSES SALE OF FORD AUTO PARTS

PANAMA, Sept. 16.—(UP)—Employees of the Canal Zone Supply department refused today to sell workers parts for Ford automobiles "until Henry Ford signs the automotive code of the NRA."

The refusal was reported to be on the order of someone at Washington. Officials would not comment.

It was regarded as possible the refusal was caused by the desire to reserve spare parts to repair government Fords in case the administration at Washington decided to buy no more Fords.

WARNING ISSUED TO CHINESE BY JAPAN

PEIPING, Sept. 16.—(UP)—Japan warned today that "drastic measures" would be taken against China unless troops were withdrawn from the Kuyuan area.

The warning came through the latest of several indications the two and one-half month cessation of hostilities between China and Japan might be nearing an end.

General Ho Ying-Ching, Chinese war minister, held the presence of the troops at Kuyuan justified. They were sent there, he said, to suppress bandits.

Japan regards the occupation as a violation of the truce that ended the Japanese drive toward Peiping.

R. F. C. PLANS HUGE LOAN FOR RUSSIA

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—(UP)—A second credit to the Russian government, advancing $50,000,000 to $75,000,000 for the purchase of American cotton, copper and aluminum is being arranged by the reconstruction finance corporation, the Herald-Tribune said today.

Details are now being completed, the newspaper said. Jesse H. Jones, RFC chairman, conferred yesterday with Peter A. GALLUP RESIDENTS WARNED BY GUARDS

GALLUP, N. M., Sept. 16.—(UP)—Officers of the New Mexico National Guard warned Gallup residents against congregating on downtown streets today as a precaution against a recurrence of demonstrations like yesterday's when 115 children left their classrooms for a protest parade.

The city jail, where Mrs. Martha "Bob" Roberts, 23, and four other representatives of the National Miners union were held incommunicado on vagrancy charges, was heavily guarded.

"We want Martha," the children cried in unison as they paraded past the jail, shouting and singing. They were led by a 13-year-old youth who threatened to pummel any child who refused to join the parade.

SLEEPING SICKNESS SERUM

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 16.—(UP)—A serum of positive benefit in treating encephalitis has been developed by Dr. Karl Edward Rosenow, experimental bacteriologist of Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn., it became known today.

Dr. Rosenow, who conducted research experiments in De Paul hospital here last week, telegraphed local health authorities the results of his tests had been borne out by further experiments in the Mayo clinic. The physician succeeded in infecting rabbits with the sleeping sickness germ by taking cultures from the throats of victims of the disease and injecting it into the animals.

Meantime, backbone of the seven week epidemic appeared broken. Fewer deaths and new cases are being reported daily.

FORD WILL EMPLOY 5000 WAR VETERANS

DETROIT, Sept. 16.—(UP)—Five thousand World War veterans will be given employment by the Ford Motor company, Red Humphrey, commander of the Wayne county council, American Legion, announced late yesterday.

Humphrey said that hiring of the veterans, at the rate of 300 a day until the quota is filled, would begin Monday. Those seeking employment must bring their discharge papers, Humphrey said, and have evidence of a satisfactory war record.

One company official said the contemplated addition to the company would bring the total Ford employment in the Detroit area to approximately 50,000.

GOAL CODE IS BEING SIGNED BY OPERATORS

boards to govern the industry and settle labor disputes.

It becomes effective the second Monday after presidential approval. Johnson had hoped for action on the code by operators last night. This was delayed by further negotiations over the wage agreements between operators and the United Mine Workers.

Johnson said signing of the code was not necessarily contingent on completion of the wage contracts, but he was anxious to "clean them up at one blow." NRA officials blamed a group of West Virginia, Kentucky and Virginia operators for the delay on the wage contracts.

Many Details Johnson said that while numerous details of the wage contracts remained to be straightened out, a formula had been reached which he believed assured prompt action.

The new code retains the minimum price provisions contained in the code drafted by NRA a week ago. It forbids sale of coal at less than "fair market prices" which shall be determined by regional marketing agencies and shall be subject to review by the government.

The provision for a flat minimum 40-hour week replaces a plan for a 32-hour week for 26 weeks and a 40-hour week for 26 weeks thereafter. Hours of work may be shortened if a majority of workers at a mine desire to share work with unemployed men.

Under the code the NRA as soon as possible will study the practicability of shortening hours throughout the industry and making further adjustments in wages.

Other classifications of employment will maintain their customary differentials and that payments for work on a tonnage or other piecework basis will maintain their customary relationship to the payments on a time basis provided in said basic minimum rates.

Mine workers on a tonnage basis are given the right to have check-weighmen of their own choosing. No employee shall be required to live in homes rented from the mining company or to trade at company stores. No person less than 17 years old shall be employed underground and no one less than 16 shall work outside.

DUNLAP WINS U. S. AMATEUR GOLF TITLE

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 16.—(UP)—A magnificent morning round of 65, three under par, enabled George Dunlap, Jr., Flushing, N. Y., to win the National Amateur golf championship today, defeating Max Marston, Philadelphia, 6 and 5, in the 36-hole final.

Dunlap's 68, a new course record, and one of the greatest rounds ever played in the amateur tournament gave Dunlap a lead of 7 up at the end of the first 18 holes. Bobby Jones' 67 against "Chick" Evans in the final at Minneapolis, Minn., in 1927, is the only round ever played in the Amateur better than Dunlap's 68.

In the afternoon Dunlap wasn't able to keep up his burning pace, and played to protect his lead. He won the 19th and 22nd holes to go 9 up, but he never won a hole after that.

Marston won the 23rd and 24th with birdies, and the 26th with a par 4 to reduce the little New Yorker's lead to 6 up.

LAMSON'S FATE IS GIVEN JURY THIS MORNING

In reply to the state's circumstantial evidence, the defense developed a theory that Mrs. Lamson could have died from a fall against a washstand, defense testimony said that the relations between the Lamsons were "courtious and happy" at all times; that "Dave treated Allene with great chivalry"; that the state's "blood stains" might have come from "carrots or skyscrapers," and that his relations with Mrs. Kelley were strictly on an open aboveboard basis and involved business only. The famed E. O. Heinrich, Berkeley scientific sleuth, testified on the defense accident theory.

Defense attorney Maurice Ruckin put before the jury the maxim that it is better to let 100 guilty persons go free than to punish especially with death, an innocent person. The jury had seen the motion picture film "Voltaire" in which the plot circled around the execution of an innocent man on unjust charges.

In the last minutes of the trial, Chief Prosecutor Allan P. Lindsay pounded on the rail of the jury box with the piece of pipe alleged to be the weapon of death. Even jurors blanched at his dramatic gesture. Lamson was a sickly palor and repressed tears as the state attorney demanded the defendant's life as forfeit for the death of his wife.

WILL ROGERS says:

BEVERLY HILLS, Sept. 16. (To the Editor of The Register:) Cuba, you better hurry and get a dictator, a President, a keeper or something, for one more week is all you got to stay on the front page.

When the Giants have won two games, Washington two and Notre Dame backfield starts percolating, Cuba just as well be Tasmania as far as the papers are concerned. And that's what makes us a great nation, we take the little things serious and the big ones as a joke. Many many people out of work, some even in actual want, yet carrying on in confidence, and in hope. When the little fellow that is actually in want can have faith in his government, by golly, the big ones should certainly carry on, for they have never missed a meal so far.

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

SANTA BARBARA BANS BEER SALE AFTER MIDNIGHT

SANTA BARBARA, Sept. 16.—The ban on beer is back!

Effective yesterday afternoon, upon publication of an emergency ordinance passed by the city council, legal brew becomes illegal in cafes and beer parlors between the hours of 12 midnight and 6 a. m. Dancing in beer parlors also is forbidden.

The council, after effecting stringent rules governing the sale of lager immediately upon its return last April, several months later revoked them, and allowed a "wide-open" policy.

With that, two large beer parlors mushroomed up in the center of the business district, both maintaining dance halls.

Charging that rowdiness ruled in the establishments, even into the wee hours, the city waged war upon them and the new legislation resulted.

Two Arrested In Disappearance Of Mexican Laborer

New developments in the investigation of the mysterious disappearance of Francisco Mendoza, Mexican laborer, last November, led to the arrest of Jesus Pena, 23, residing at Delhi, and Silvia Delia, 24, Mexican woman living at Stanton, yesterday. The couple was booked at the county jail for investigation in connection with Mendoza's disappearance.

Inquiries at the sheriff's office revealed that prior to his disappearance, Mendoza lived with the Delia woman. Since that time, the woman took up with Pena and lived with him for some time at Stanton. Some time ago Pena and the Delia woman broke up and the Delia woman returned to Delhi, officers said.

Deputy Sheriff L. H. Nicholson, who has been working on the case, stated today that the couple has been under surveillance for some time, and has been questioned on two former occasions regarding the disappearance of Mendoza.

A few days following the disappearance of Mendoza, Mexicans residing at Delhi reported the discovery of blood stains and strands of hair near the railroad tracks in that locality.

COUNTY UNION WILL CONTINUE LIQUOR FIGHT

With a renewed determination to maintain the same staunch stand against the liquor traffic held for the past half century by the Orange County W. C. T. U., the organization adjourned yesterday afternoon at the Orange Methodist church following one of the most enthusiastic conferences in its history, a conference which marked the Golden Jubilee of the group.

Largely attended, the convention was replete with interesting highlights of the 50 years of accomplishments. Women present in many cases had been associated with the organization for 50 years and included in this group were Mrs. C. E. French of Santa Ana, Mrs. Hattie Young of Los Angeles, Dr. Armstrong of Costa Mesa and Mrs. Anna Hill of Hemet, president of the Orange county union for four years and of the Riverside union for a like period.

Pledges for Homes
The renewal of pledges for voluntary total abstinence was advocated, and it was suggested that pledges be kept in homes and guests asked to sign them. The pledge for total abstinence was emphasized in the resolutions presented at the close of the convention, one of which urged pledge signing by youth of the nation in Sunday schools, day schools and wherever the youth of the nation might come together.

An emphasis on scientific temperance instruction on the effects of alcohol on the human system was urged in the resolutions, and union members were asked to inform themselves of existing liquor laws and aid in their execution. The resolutions were read by Mrs. Lola Grimm of Placentia, newly elected president of the group and member of the resolutions committee. Mrs. Margaret Utt headed the committee.

Parade Staged
One of the important events of the convention was a parade about the vicinity of Orange, led by Traffic Officer Homer Davis of Orange. Mrs. R. W. Jones of El Modena conducted the closing devotional service held yesterday morning, and reports of directors and election of officers featured the session. The latter was conducted by Mrs. Sarah Brown, county parliamentarian.

The memorial service held in the afternoon was conducted by Mrs. J. H. Walker of Anaheim, and was held in memory of the 27 Orange County W. C. T. U. members who passed away last year. Mrs. Cora Hale of Fullerton, acting president, turned the gavel over to the new president, Mrs. Grimm.

Florey of North Jackson street, Midway City, was an interested attendant at the golden anniversary convention of Orange county Thursday and Friday in Orange. Mrs. Florey became affiliated with the W. Mrs. Florey, who is a native of New York, holds pleasant memories of a year's study under Miss Frances Willard, organizer of the W. C. T. U., being a student and close friend of Miss Willard the year she taught in Northwestern seminary at Lima, N. Y.

Nancy Alice Over Called By Death

GIVING wheat the same buying power that it had in the period before the World War is the goal of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. This chart shows how big the problem is. In 1914 8 sacks of wheat would buy a pair of shoes, a barrel of flour, a chair, and a plow. In 1933 it took 22 sacks of wheat to buy the same set of articles. In 1930 it took 19 sacks of wheat and early in 1933 it took 22 sacks of wheat. The cause of the low buying power is too great a supply. To remedy the situation, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration has begun a campaign asking farmers to reduce their acreage for the 1934 and 1935 crops so that the return from a bushel of wheat will be once more what it was in the pre-war period, in which its power to buy the goods which farmers need. The goal of the wheat administration is the 1914 basis, on which 8 sacks of wheat would buy the bill of goods pictured here.

SEEK TO FORM ORGANIZATION FOR GROWERS

Plans for organizing the vegetable growers of Southern California with a view to stabilizing prices and effecting pro-rating of crops, reaching the market, as well as for forming vegetable growers departments of each county farm bureau in the state, were discussed at a special meeting of vegetable growers held yesterday at the Los Angeles County Farm Bureau offices, according to word brought back here by Roland E. Flaherty, secretary of the Orange County Farm Bureau.

T. A. Robinson, of Simi, presided over the meeting which was attended by more than 100 leading growers. Flaherty acted as secretary. A resolution was adopted asking the field crops department of the state farm bureau to represent the vegetable industry in the matter of special stabilization agreements under the Agricultural adjustment act, and also act as spokesmen for the vegetable growers on questions coming under the state pro-rate act.

It was brought out by several speakers that it will be impossible for the growers to raise wages until there has been a marked improvement in the market by means of stabilization agreements and pro-rating of crops. Moreover, it was explained that little would be gained by organizing a co-operative marketing organization before the stabilization and pro-rating of crops.

A special committee was appointed to confer with the vegetable shippers, now drafting a co-operation code, it was stated.

DIES WHILE CUTTING CAKE AT WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

While cutting the wedding cake at her fortieth wedding anniversary party last night in K. of P. hall, Anaheim, Mrs. Mathilda Schweiger, a resident of Garden Grove for the last 13 years, dropped dead. She was 64 years of age and death was attributed to a heart attack brought on by excitement.

Mrs. Schweiger and her husband, August, were celebrating their anniversary with members of their family and some 20 guests. The wedding dinner had been completed and the ceremony of cutting the candle-bedecked cake, the highlight of the party, was in progress. Mrs. Schweiger had just cut the first piece of cake and was handing it to her husband when she straightened up, gasped and fell back into the arms of the man with whom she had fought life's battles for nearly half a century.

Efforts of members of the fire department to revive the stricken woman with the inhalator were fruitless. Mrs. Schweiger was born in Wisconsin, later moved to Minnesota, then Idaho and finally California, where she settled down in Garden Grove with her husband. She is survived by her husband, one daughter, Mrs. Earl H. Briggs of Long Beach and one son, Max O. Schweiger, of Anaheim.

EVANGELIST ENDS SERVICES SUNDAY

FULLERTON, Sept. 16.—Evangelist Bert Miller spoke last night at the Christian and Missionary Alliance, 124 East Commonwealth avenue, on the subject, "Three Bible Profiters," naming them as Esau (Genesis 25:24-34), Judas Iscariot (Mark 14:32-44; John 12:26-30), and the Rich Farmer (Luke 12:16-34).

He said that the days of unfair profit in some instances are not yet over, and some are even using the NRA as a basis for unjust profit, but that the greatest profiteers of all are those persons who plan and build for this life only, who say up treasures on earth, rather than in heaven, who think only in terms of time and not in terms of eternity.

CLEAVER'S HYSTERICAL ALMANAC

This week, in 1667 was born a prince of narrative JONATHAN SWIFT

His most famous work, Gulliver's Travels, has been a classic ever since he wrote it. It is as tall a tale as ever was produced. But even Swift, with his vivid imagination never wrote of seeing in the land of the giants the Lilliputians.

Anything that resembled a washing-machine, because even he could never dream that a machine would be evolved for which women would pay real money and which would deliver nothing but the wet-wash they'd been getting for nothing during uncounted centuries.

WASHINGTON

TAXES

When Commissioner of Internal Revenue Guy T. Helvering left the White House the other day he announced Presidential approval of a campaign to collect a billion dollars in delinquent income taxes he didn't tell half the story.

Back of this simple statement lies an Administration decision to put on the gaffly act with some of our more notorious tax dodgers.

In the near future look for some strong-arm methods by the Treasury.

It isn't as easy to collect income taxes as the form you get every March would indicate.

Bankers hamstringing the process by selling stocks to their wives at the end of the year as a loss, and buying them back after January 1 at the original price. Racketeers and gangsters beat the rap by concealing all tangible assets.

Politicians seem to be able to avoid payments by mere virtue of being politicians.

If Helvering and his boys are going to carry out the "conservative" estimate of collecting $300,000,000 of the billion right off and the rest through court proceedings, there is only one avenue of approach—take it from an insider at the Internal Revenue Bureau.

That is through a campaign of harassment. It has proved highly effective in certain cases of the past. It works wonders that the intricate technicalities of law can't touch and it usually brings about a compromise out of court.

Remember how the efficient Treasury agents were even able to tell where Al Capone bought his jeweled watch fobs, belt buckles and suspenders when Public Enemy No. 1 was brought into court for income tax evasion?

Those same agents can be just as painstaking in probing the private affairs of other individuals. They can ascertain when a man transferred all his property to his wife, who made phony stock deals and who hired safe deposit boxes or opened bank accounts under assumed names.

Capone was ready to compromise when they got through with him, even to the added extent of a short jail sentence. Other considerations took him into court.

Similar treatment can be applied to "respectable men of the community" as easily as they were to Capone.

All the money won't be collected from gangsters—although there is one New York bootleg king who undoubtedly will get special treatment in view of an unsatisfied $3,000,000 judgment against him which has gone by default so far.

Even sedate corporations that raise pious hands to the sun and then sneak in for heavy refunds may get a look-see from the treasury agents.

Privately, Internal Revenue officials admit that such methods are the best way of shaking hidden taxes out of people. There are so many quirks in the law that court proceedings are a gamble—to say nothing of costly.

The record of the Board of Tax Appeals on court cases has been about fifty-fifty. It is cheaper to scare the culprit into a compromise.

For this reason those who know say that if Helvering expects to collect a billion he must really have about twice that amount on his secret books with which to play.

FARMERS

A storm is brewing out in the farming regions and heading straight toward Washington, our agents on the agricultural front report.

Competent observers just back from the rural districts say the farmers aren't satisfied with the way federal relief set-ups are working. (Although this is nothing new). Primarily the Agricultural Adjustment Administration isn't functioning fast enough to suit the tillers of the soil.

They want inflation or something else new in the way of aid. A case is reported from Kansas of a man who wanted to see just what measure of relief he could get from the New Deal.

Last March he wrote his land bank for a $5000 loan on his farm. The last week of August he got a form letter in reply advising him his application had been received and would be taken under advisement.

TAPE

The Home Loan Board, designed to derisk mortgages off the necks of city dwellers, is coming in for plenty of criticism along the same lines.

Ten days ago the private records of the Board's treasurer showed that only nine loans actually had been consummated. There may have been a few more in the interim. A Pittsburgh realtor is authorized for the statement 30,000 applications for mortgage relief were on file. Not more than a dozen have been approved by the district office.

Each one must come to Washington for final okay.

It isn't necessary to wait until a code is signed and in operation to look for chiseling, overworked NRA officials declare in their few off-hours.

The oil code contained a price-fixing provision. The auto men succeeded in getting a concession in the open-closed-shop controversy. Ever sincere, industries of major consequence have been fighting bitterly for similar advantages.

The NRA men compare this attitude of big business with the hundreds of little fellows who are eager to go along fully with the Blue Eagle.

Without meaning to be facetious they say the big boys should sit up and take notice when helpful gestures come from the oyster shell crushers, the curled hair industry, the corn cob pipe men, manufacturers of ecclesiastical statuary and the toothpick fashioners.

NEW YORK

By James McMullin

INFLATION

Contract bridge and jigsaw puzzles are all very well in their way but Wall Street would rather play inflation poker than anything else.

Interest in the game was suddenly revived this week, all because Bernard Baruch and Secretary Wallace passed a few remarks. Most of speculative New York wants to get the same way at the same time and it doesn't take much more than a whisper from the second cousin of the deputy administrator in charge of the code for the false teeth industry to start them laying their cash on the line.

The best informed local sources cannot see any real change in the situation. Devaluation and currency expansion are still distinctly possible but not in the near future. The talk you hear is part propaganda with a purpose and part pressure from those who have been sold the idea that inflation will really help.

Wise opinion was in no way surprised when Secretary Wallace apparently reversed himself for the second time in two weeks. They didn't think his former constituents would care for his implication that inflation wasn't quite the right prescription for their ailments. New York understands that pressure from the agricultural districts has been terrific since commodities began their latest sinking spell.

The propaganda with a purpose has three main targets.

1. To stir up a little speculative interest—not shoot the moon stuff, but enough to give the grains and cotton a noticeable boost. This supposedly will appease the farmers until stronger measures become advisable.

2. To quiet political agitation until NRA gets a more thorough work-out. Congressmen have been hearing from the home folks and are getting hot up about the delay in using the Thomas amendment.

3. To scare the banks into loosening up on credit. Most of the big banks are strongly opposed to currency doctoring. The implication is that that's what they will get unless they do their stuff on credit expansion. The only hitch is that New York banks at least are more afraid of becoming non-liquid than they are of inflation itself.

TENACIOUS

Wall Street may be—and is—degenerate in its comments about the Committee for the Nation but there's one thing it can't deny. The Committee certainly cleaves to its objective with a bulldog grip.

Their latest search for recruits takes in the banks. The idea is to prove that the deflated price level caused all the banker's woes and that the bankers themselves have been "unjustly blamed." The remedy of course is revaluation. This drive hasn't gained much ground in New York but apparently dozens of smaller banks are delighted with the theory.

A New York banker with a sharp tongue comments: "Why wouldn't they be? If you've been blaming yourself for your unpopularity, it must be nice to have someone tell you it wasn't your fault at all."

REEF

The inflation ship may run aground on the uncharted reef of labor opposition before it reaches its destination.

Most labor leaders have avoided committing themselves publicly on the subject. They have enough battles in their hands without getting entangled in an unnecessary scrap with farm opinion. But insiders will tell you that such leaders as Frances Perkins and Leo Wolman are privately very much opposed. They believe that an artificial increase in prices would come right out of the wage-earners' hide. They will have plenty to say in the Administration's inner councils if and when the real thing becomes imminent.

CURRENCIES

Big time speculators—and quite a few smaller fry—are taking a sudden interest in the foreign exchange markets. Foreign departments of New York banks are doing a rushing business in exchange transactions despite official restrictions.

The wise boys don't agree about what's going to happen. Some are gambling that France will go off gold, others that both the pound and the dollar are bound to rise in terms of the metal. The best dope has it that the British are dealing new cards. Financial London is deliberately trying to cheapen gold to ease the pressure on France and help her stay on the metal. British financial commitments in France are such that French defection would be a paralyzing blow. Advocates of the cheaper pound may not like it but they will have to take a back seat for a while. The British have so many irons in the fire it must be hard to know which to pull out, but if they don't know the answer nobody does.

GOLD

Since we slapped an embargo on gold exports, licensed purchases of gold for the arts have risen 500 per cent and exports of semi-finished gold products about 800 per cent. What's more, it all came from liquidation sources. Swiss jewelers showed a particular yen for gold watch cases without the works. These could be melted down at a modest profit of $7.00 an ounce.

Nobody ever accused the Swiss—or their American connections—of being dumb.

REMOVAL OF PROFITS WAY TO END WAR

"As a man who volunteered for his country's service in the World war, I aver that I am not a pacifist, even at the risk of being considered a militarist, which I am not," declared Sam Collins, United States congressman from the nineteenth district, speaking yesterday before members and guests of the League of Women Voters. "Nevertheless," he continued, "I am in thorough sympathy with one of the aims of this organization, the elimination of war. And I hope to present during my term of office, a remedy so simple and yet so effective that its application would end war for all time."

And in a few words, Congressman Collins outlined the remedy, nothing more nor less than the removal of all profits from war. He pointed out that factories making war supplies might be so regulated by governmental control as to earn only the percentage of profit that would accrue in days of peace, and declared that war that yielded no immense profits to any nation or to any individual, would soon become unprofitable.

The occasion for the address was a luncheon in the Y. M. C. A. at which the League of Women Voters complimented not only the congressman from this district, but various men and women who had furthered its constructive and educational program during the year. Mrs. J. D. Campbell, League president, introduced the speaker as the climax of an informal program to which brief talks were contributed by Judge Kenneth E. Morrison, Miss Nancy Elder, Y. W. C. A. secretary; L. L. Benman of the Junior college faculty; Ray Adkinson, county superintendent of schools; Ralph Smedley, Y. M. C. A. secretary; Eleanor Elliott, of The Register, and Mrs. F. H. Heine, League chairman of legislative status of women and general chairman of the day's arrangements.

H. B. City Council, Chamber Hit State Oil Suit

WITHDRAWAL OF ACTION SOUGHT AS WORK STOPS

HUNTINGTON, BEACH, Sept. 16.—The city council last night endorsed a resolution framed by the directors of the chamber of commerce, opposing the action of California state officials in bringing suit to prevent the drilling of oil wells at Huntington Beach in the town lot field on the charge that the wells are taking oil from beneath the state tide lands.

The resolution was authorized by the chamber of commerce Thursday night and a committee named to draft it. The committee was C. P. Patton, chairman, D. R. White and Ray Overacker. The resolution is directed to the president of the United States, Secretary Jones, the state attorney general of California and the state finance director in charge of public lands.

The resolution charges that the action of the state officials in filing the suit defeats the aims of the national recovery act. It charges that 2000 men have been thrown out of work here, that wells are closed down and further drilling prevented.

The city council, on motion of Councilman John Marion after D. R. White had brought the matter to the attention of the council, unanimously endorsed the resolution. The resolution asks the withdrawal of the suit by the state officials and asks the national administration for an immediate investigation.

The resignation of J. Ed Huston as a member of the council was received and was accepted. Huston gave as his reason for resigning the fact that he had been appointed temporary postmaster at Huntington Beach.

After receiving the resignation of Huston the council recessed for 10 minutes. After resuming session Mayor Elson G. Conrad announced that the council had failed to reach an agreement as to the selection of a successor to Huston on the council. He stated the council would adjourn to Monday night and if they could not agree on a new councilman then, a special meeting would be called.

Ralph Turner, M. A. Turner, C. G. Ward and one or two others urged the election of Willis H. Warner in talks to the council and referred to a petition for Warner's election filed last week. They pointed out that the incoming councilman would have only seven months to serve and advised appointment by the council of Huston's successor rather than call a special election, but did not mention any name other than Warner, as available for appointment.

PASTORS ARRANGE FOR JOINT SERVICE

Arrangements were made to hold a union Thanksgiving service in the church of the Nazarene on Thanksgiving morning, with the Rev. Mr. Runyan preaching the sermon.

SCHOOL TEACHERS GUESTS AT RECEPTION IN MESA CHURCH

COSTA MESA, Sept. 16.—High school and grammar school teachers were guests at a reception given by the Community church. LeRoy Anderson was chairman of the reception committee.

The Rev. W. L. Lowe presented the address of welcome, declaring that the church and schools are working to a common end in the education of children and that their methods so overlap that they are almost identical.

In behalf of the young people of the church, Jack Long, president of the Epworth league, gave a short word of welcome. Sidney H. Davidson, the high school principal and Henry Abrams, the principal of the grammar school, responded to the welcoming addresses. The church male quartet, Herbert McMurry, Lawrence Wright, Ed Bennett and Earl Winterbourne, sang "Bells of St. Mary's", and other selected numbers, accompanied by Miss Ardithe Lowe. A one-act farce entitled, "Sylvia's Aunt", was given by a group of high school and eighth grade grammar school girls. Those taking part were Mary Conwell, Miriam Brown, Wanda Thompson, Helen Davis, Doris Gibson, Ruth Attridge, Grace Shilling, Betty Dodge, and Betty Lambertson. Mrs. William Conwell directed the play. Mrs. Grow Brown arranged the program.

The hall was decorated with large bouquets of many autumn flowers. Mrs. E. A. Randall had charge of the decorations.

Following the program, punch and water were served. Mrs. Fred Long, president of the Women's Aid society, assisted by fellow workers served.

The Rev. Grow S. Brown, superintendent of the church school, presided at the meeting.

HUNDREDS OIL MEN JOBLESS DUE TO SUIT

HUNTINGTON, BEACH, Sept. 16.—Hundreds of workmen walked home from the oil field today, out of work until such time as the state injunction suit charging wells with trespassing on state owned tidelands is settled. All the wells recently drilled that were on production are closed in completely. The oil companies refused to take oil from the producing wells until the state suit is settled. This necessitated closing the wells down entirely. Workmen, except for watchmen, are idle.

Operators say the new federal oil code cutting production was not responsible for operations being suspended.

Under the NRA code no oil can be run to storage, and there is no storage available if oil could be stored. The companies owning producing wells would willingly sell their oil if there were any buyers, but companies with pipe lines refuse to take oil and it is impossible to truck out the production from the gusher wells.

The production under curtailment being 18,000 barrels daily. The wells drilling are being closed down as fast as the holes reach a point where casing can be set and cemented for protection in accordance with the laws of the state and rules of the state mining bureau, division of oil and gas.

The operators are taking the situation hopefully, trusting the suit will reach a verdict in the suit at the earliest possible date. Under the trespass law the state may claim all the oil produced from all the wells, it is claimed, and this is what the suit now filed provides for.

The Standard Oil company, which is not buying the new oil, is not affected. Petroleum Refining company, which is taking oil from its own well, did not shut the well down. Other oil buying companies were buying from day to day and none of the operators had contracts, but even if there had been long time contracts, such contracts usually provide for such emergencies as court actions, enabling them to cease purchasing the oil.

Leasing and buying of oil lots in the field, which was fairly active when the suit was filed, has stopped suddenly. The field is quiet after a tremendous activity. From day to day more drilling wells will shut down.

SITE OFFERED SAN CLEMENTE CHURCH GROUP

SAN CLEMENTE, Sept. 16.—Two adjacent lots in the first unit have been offered as a gift to the Solano club by their owner on condition that they be used as site for a church building. This proposition was announced by the president of the club, Mrs. Julia Dettmers, at a meeting in the home of Mrs. Emma Fueselle Thursday afternoon.

Purchase of a lot was a much discussed subject during the past year at meetings of the club, which is an auxiliary of the Community church, and a number of sites were considered. The matter of accepting the lots will be turned over to the church society for decision. At present Sunday school and preaching services of the Community church are held in the grammar school building.

Other business incident to the first meeting of the year was transacted. Regular meetings will be held the last Thursday of the month in the Social clubhouse. Mrs. William Melch, treasurer, who has left the community for a few months, resigned her office. Mrs. J. R. Hopkins, secretary, was appointed to undertake the additional work of treasurer until the next election of officers. Tea and cakes were served by the hostesses who afterward entertained her guests with an account of her recent trip to the Century of Progress exposition.

Watkins gave a musical monologue, "The Pigeon of La Fong Fu."

Oil Allotment Committee Has Easy Job

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Sept. 16.—The new oil allotment committee for the town lot field met today and organized. Cecil M. Reed was elected vice chairman and was also assigned to the job as secretary. The committee members waxed mirthful over their job of allotment of oil in the town lot field for the present at least.

Closing down of all the gusher wells by the lawsuit brought by the state, throwing the men out of work, and stopping production, leaves the apportionment work of the committee an easy job with nothing to do but wait the time when there will be a resumption of production, which time depends on the disposition of the lawsuit.

BOOK REVIEWS

By BRUCE CATTON

Plenty of harassed city folk have concluded, during the troublesome times of depression, that all would be well with them if they could only escape from the city, get back to the open country and pursue the simple life.

Mr. Arthur Train, the novelist, has been examining this yen, and he seems to have concluded—in his latest novel, "No Matter What,"—that the city chap who gives way to it is in for a pretty bumpy time.

In this novel we are introduced to a young New York stock broker who, after being a millionaire for the duration of the boom, has suddenly become almost completely broke. The young man reviews his life as a money-getter, admits that it has been purposeless and without savor, and decides to take refuge in a run-down farm along the Maine coast, bequeathed to him by his grandfather.

So, full of good resolutions, he sets out for Maine to lead the simple life. He isn't long in getting disillusioned.

He finds that farming is a highly specialized occupation for which he has had no training and at which he cannot possibly succeed. He entertains a notion of supporting himself by being a lobster fisherman, only to discover that that is worse than farming. He tries other stunts, of the kind about which sentimental city chaps dream, and learns that he can't make a go of any of them. And in the end, sadder and wiser, he goes back to town, gets a job in a broker's office, and starts in where he left off.

Oh yes—there's a romance in this, and he brings his new Maine-bred sweetheart back with him. The romance part is pretty silly.

It is published by Scribner's.

"Tammanyism is human nature's basest but ever-present side, a constant reminder that self-government must be newly won each year."

With this warning James E. Finegan, one of the anti-organization Democrats in New York who formulated the charges of waste and inefficiency against Jimmy Walker last year, opens his book, "Tammany at Bay," in which he surveys New York's chances of getting something like a decent city government out of the elections this fall.

The one thing Tammany fears, he remarks, is its own record. The damning facts that have been brought to light about the kind of administration it has been giving New York in the last few years, he says, is enough to beat it this fall—if things are handled right.

And yet, he warns, simply raking over the old scandals will not do. The indictments against Tammany in the approaching campaign must be up-to-the-minute if they are to succeed. Not otherwise will Tammany be kept on the defensive in the mayoralty fight.

In the last weeks before election, Mr. Finegan points out, the 1934 budget must be drawn up and the 1934 assessments must be published. The relief scandals will be at their worst. If the opposition capitalizes on the talking points which these things are sure to give it, Tammany will get licked.

Being a practical politician, Mr. Finegan goes on to mention certain maneuvers which must accompany a winning fight. And he warns, in closing, that "unless we are so discouraged and debauched that we despair of self-government, Tammany must be beaten."

Dodd, Mead and Co. publishes this book.

"The People's Choice," by Herbert Agar, passes the presidents of the United States in review, from Washington to Harding, and concludes that the calibre of men elected to that high office has suffered because of the rapid spread of democracy in a country which also elected to go industrial at the same time.

Of the first seven presidents, says Mr. Agar, six were first rate men by any standard—world statesmen of whom any nation might be proud. Then, after Jackson, came a vast extension of democracy. The oligarchy which had governed the country lost its power and the voice of the people became supreme. As a result, he says, only four of the remaining presidents were truly big men. The rest range from mediocre to worse.

As Mr. Agar sees it, a good bit of this trouble arises because the nation tried to combine the Hamiltonian and Jeffersonian programs at once.

Hamilton's scheme for protected industry, a powerful owning class and a strong federal government was adopted—and so was Jefferson's play for complete democracy.

The old south tried to preserve Jefferson's agrarian civilization as well, and was crushed in the Civil War. At the same time, Hamilton's profound distrust of the common people was ignored.

"The People's Choice" is a stimulating and valuable book, which is published by the Houghton Mifflin Co.

Roc and unicorn are not more in vogue with the tombs of Prester John. Ports of drowned Atlantis lift fathoms under ocean drift. Page and knight and troubadour stride across the world no more. All things marvelous and brave pass at length by wind or wave.

Sirens rise no more in foam. Sorcery has fled from Rome. Men and fashions gather dust. Where the rotting claymores rust; Villon, Crichton, Brummel, Poe, Sleep the sleep that all must know.

Thus 'tis sung and thus 'tis said: All things marvelous are dead.

Wherefore, let us draw the shade. Light a bonfire barricade. Raise a cup of flaming brew, Nectar, hemlock, grape or rue; Flout with song or nothings Science and its damned machines.

Gallant gentlemen and brave, Here's to long nights in the grave!

The most talkative character in all of Shakespeare's works is Hamlet, who has 1659 lines to speak.

"Soldiers of the Storm," who swoop down out of the skies to "get their man," take possession of Walker's State theater screen, starting Sunday.

Regis Toomey, Anita Page, Barbara Barondess and Barbara Weeks appear in the cast.

It has to do with the activities of Uncle Sam's Mexican border patrol, the flying counterpart of the famous Texas Rangers, and how they handle smugglers from the clouds with convincing machine gun fire.

Break-neck air stunts, under-cover plots, fast and furious action and a pleasing, romantic story—that's "Soldiers of the Storm." Others in the supporting cast include Wheeler Oakman, Dewey Robinson, George Cooper, Arthur Zanzer and Henry Wadsworth.

"GOODBYE AGAIN"

ENDS ENGAGEMENT

"Goodbye Again," called by a number of Santa Ana patrons last night as the "best show since 'The Guardsman,'" and reminding them of that picture because of its sophistication, its wisecracks and its comedy ends its Santa Ana run tonight.

The picture opened at the Broadway theater on Thursday.

Joan Blondell and Warren William, stars of "Gold Diggers of 1933" are featured in the new picture.

"TUGBOAT ANNIE"

RETURNS SEPT. 23

Following many requests and in answer to many inquiries, "Tug Boat Annie," the Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery film which broke all records here several weeks ago, will be shown again at the Fox West Coast theater starting a week from today, on Saturday.

Manager Lester J. Fountain believes the picture will again do a splendid business in Santa Ana, basing his belief on the fact that it was so popular before, and because of the many requests for a return engagement.

Police News

Included among arrests made Thursday night by police were three men booked at the county jail on intoxication charges. They were A. D. Griffith, 32, welder, 3918 East First street, Yong Beach, and George Rife, 30, driller, 309 Geneva street, Huntington Beach, who were picked up by Officers Sam Snodgrass and Fred Swayze of the fruit patrol; and Omar Murray, 45, laborer, 1215 Vista street, Hollywood, arrested by Officers Elliott and Murillo of the Santa Ana city police.

Juan Murillo, 43, residing at 232 East Sycamore street, Anaheim, was arrested Thursday by Deputy Sheriff Arthur Bells and E. E. Perry and booked at the county jail on a charge of indecent exposure.

Lawrence Klantz, 409 West Fifth street, Santa Ana, reported this morning to police headquarters that some unknown person last night attempted to break into the premises occupied by Williams and Klantz, radio part dealers, at that address. According to Klantz, the party or parties climbed over a fence, and then smashed a window in an attempt to force entrance to the store. The approach of the owners, who investigated the noise about the place, drove away the intruders.

Complaints filed at the police station that certain persons are in the habit of throwing discarded envelopes and mailing wrappers on the streets, today received the attention of the local authorities. One alleged offender was interviewed by the police and advised to discontinue the alleged practice.

NEW ROBINSON PICTURE OPENS AT BROADWAY

Edward G. Robinson's new picture, "I Loved a Woman," opens at the Broadway theater tomorrow. Its world premiere was staged in Los Angeles on Thursday night. Kay Francis has the leading feminine role, and Genevieve Tobin is said to give her best screen performance.

The picture stars Edward G. Robinson, star of "Little Caesar," and other big pictures, together with Kay Francis. It is one picture that is big enough to exploit two of the screen's biggest stars.

The story concerns a meat packer, who allows a woman to take him away from his ideals in life, but who shows him the way to a great fortune. There is much history in the new picture and the Insull scandal is hinted at towards the end of the story, for the packer has to escape to Greece while the government does all it can to extradite him.

Aside from the feature, will be shown "The Snow Man," a color-tone cartoon and "Screen Snapshots," which has proven so popular recently.

PICTURE TUESDAY

"Shanghai Madness," starring Spencer Tracy and Fay Wray, will be the attraction at the Fox West Coast theater on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, it was announced today.

Here is a picture full of action, romance and adventure. It is a "natural" for Tracy's type of acting and probably will be one of the best pictures seen here this month.

The story concerns a man who lets life beat him, who escapes to China and there, when he is down and out, is taken charge of by a girl who pulls him back to the station in life where he should be. But all this does not happen until after many battles and much hardship. Ralph Morgan, Eugene Palette and Herbert Mundin also have important roles in the production.

SPOOKY WESTERN

ENDS LOCAL RUN

A different type of Western picture, with a mystery background, is "Haunted Gold," the attraction which closes tonight at Walker's State. Dealing with the old "ghost towns" of California's gold rush days, and present-day spooks, it presents John Wayne and his devil horse, Duke, in a series of the most unusual experiences this popular riding and roaming star has offered the followers of his Western productions.

One of the many novelties is a colored cowboy, Wayne's bodyguard, whose terror of everything he sees—or imagines he sees—in the series, deserted mining camp, keeps an audience in roars of laughter.

"PILGRIMAGE" WILL

BE SHOWN THURSDAY

The long awaited picture "Pilgrimage" starring Henrietta Crossman and many other well known film favorites, will be shown at the Fox West Coast theater next Thursday and Friday. It was announced today.

"Pilgrimage" has the sweep of "Calvacade" and the intimate no-ties of "State Fair". It is thoroughly wonderful entertainment.

The story concerns a mother who sends her son to war in order to keep him from marrying a girl, not her choice. She would rather sacrifice him that have him leave her. Her daughters she treats in the same manner. Human, emotional and with just enough comedy, the picture should prove entertainment of the first water.

'TORCH SINGER' SONS OF STARS TO OPEN HERE ON THURSDAY DE MILLE FILM

Claudette Colbert's new picture, Paramount's "Torch Singer," comes to the Broadway theater Thursday, Friday and Saturday, it was announced today by Lester J. Fountain, manager.

And in the new picture, Miss Colbert does away with her usual goody-goody roles and is seen as a hardboiled queen of a nightclub. Ricardo Cortez, David Manners, Lyda Roberti and Baby LeRoy have other important roles in the picture.

Miss Colbert also sings in the new picture. It is her first appearance as a singer and her "torch" songs add much to the entertainment.

The plot concerns a woman, cheated in love in her youth, who makes all men pay until the man she loved comes back. He learns of the child she bore him years before and asks forgiveness. A gripping climax is reached when she makes her decision.

A Bobby Jones golf instruction film, "The Downswing," a cartoon, Andy Clyde in a new comedy and a news reel complete the program.

Cecil B. DeMille's big new picture, "This Day and Age," will be shown today, Sunday and Monday at the Fox West Coast theater.

The story of a group of young men who take over their city's government, in order to purge the town of its racketeers and murderers, the story is a gripping tale of heroism and preaches the doctrine that youth is not the "flaming youth" of yesterday, but that the present generation is more serious minded.

The sons of seven famous screen stars are featured in the picture and include Fred Kohler Jr., Neal Hart Jr., Wallace Reid Jr., Carlyle Blackwell Jr., Erich von Stroheim Jr., Bryant Washburn Jr. and Frank Tinney Jr.

The picture is typically DeMille. There are no bath tubs, but all the extravagance, eloquence and mob scenes are there and the film takes on an atmosphere of greatness from the start.

Charles Bickford is the star and the juvenile lead is taken by Richard Cromwell. The girl in the play is Judith Allen, making her first screen appearance.

"Down Memory Lane," a new Mickey Mouse cartoon, and a news reel also will be shown.

Scarlet snow, due to the presence of small and very thin worms, has fallen at Halmstead, Sweden.

OPENS TODAY

Charles Bickford, who has a leading role in Cecil B. DeMille's "This Day and Age," which opens a three day engagement at the Fox West Coast theater today.

A realistic saga of multi-millionaire fathers who ruin their children by too much indulgence and luxury is made in RKO-Radio Pictures' "Sweepings", starring Lionel Barrymore.

The film, coming to Walker's State Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, is a screen version of Lester Cohen's famous novel of the same title, and pictures the futility of a man's terrific effort to give his children everything.

In the title role, Barrymore builds a great merchant structure from an humble beginning in a lively, stable, gives his children every advantage his millions can buy, only to have them laugh at his ambitions for them in the end.

The production is lavishly staged, depicting, with the powerful story, the parallel rise of Chicago from its ashes.

Women Clubs Weddings

Club Group Arranges Post-Nuptial Shower

It seemed appropriate indeed that Mrs. Casson Douglas Hinley's associates in a bridge club in which she has held membership for several years, should be among the first of her friends to compliment her at a post-nuptial affair.

Mrs. Hinley will be remembered as Miss Inez Cloyes of this city, her marriage to the Los Angeles business man having occurred in San Mateo September 3, just after her return from a summer in Colorado.

The party planned by her sister club members was given yesterday in Garden Inn. Flowers in colorful variety decked the tables where luncheon was served at 1 o'clock. Place cards, later serving to record bridge scores, bore dainty small bridges.

Mrs. Hinley had planned a charming surprise for her friends, presenting each one with a corsage bouquet of white sweet peas and yellow crocus buds which had formed a shower effect with her own corsage cluster of Talsman roses, selected by Mr. Hinley.

At the conclusion of the informal round of bridge, the club members had their turn in staging a surprise, for they showered their honoree with lovely gifts in miscellaneous variety.

Present to honor Mrs. Hinley were Mesdames Will Armstrong, Lawrence Wakeham, Good Adams, Clarence Skiles, C. E. Dessery, C. E. Bressler and the Misses Mary Wakeham, Lillian Craig, Margaret Ore, Minna Smith and Pauline Parsons.

Capistrano Institute Showers Member With Gift

Capistrano Y.L.I. members joined in complimenting Mrs. James Butler (Hildegarde Layton) at their evening session held this week in their new meeting place, Getty hall. They presented the recent bride with numerous kitchen accessories for her new home, at the close of the business interval.

Among special guests present for the meeting were the Rev. Father F. A. Wakenman, chaplain, who recently returned from the east, the Rev. Father Thomas Nevin, Miss Ann Gray of Pasadena, district deputy, Miss Sarah Scally of Los Angeles, institute deputy, Miss Marie McQuirk, president of Regina Coeli institute, Los Angeles.

Thirty-five members were present for the occasion. A pink and blue color theme was observed during the refreshment hour. In charge of this phase of the evening were Mrs. Antone Borchard and the Misses Rose, Allene and Nellie Columblini.

Duplicate Contract is Sequel to Enjoyable Buffet Dinner

With contract bridge as their inspiration for entertaining, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Timmons and Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin MacMullen last night greeted a little group of kindred contract enthusiasts in the Timmons home on Red Hill avenue, Tustin, with an informally served buffet dinner to precede the evening's play.

Guests were delighted with the artistic arrangement of the dining room where the hors d'oeuvre course especially attracted attention, so varied and so delicious were the little appetizers, and so quaint the pretzel trees and other details of their serving. Centering the table from which the successive courses were served, was a great basket from which flowers cascaded in glowing profusion, and similar blossoms were placed throughout the home. Mrs. Timmons accorded full credit for the clever decorations, to Mrs. MacMullen, whose artistic gifts are recognized by all her friends.

Duplicate contract was introduced in the after-dinner hours, and scores made by Mrs. Wade Warner and Leonard G. Swales, and by Mrs. Ray Chandler and Lieutenant Commander Landis, won for them the prizes selected by the hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Timmons and Mr. and Mrs. MacMullen received as their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Chandler, Mr. and Mrs. Charles V. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Flagg, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard G. Swales, Lieutenant Commander and Mrs. Irwin F. Landis, Mrs. M. D. Borgmeyer, Mrs. Sara Haddon, Mr. and Mrs. Wade Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kelley, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Dunning and Mrs. George Briggs.

Comus Club Members Anticipate First Winter Dance

Club President Bids Official Staff to Smart Luncheon

Assembling the officers who will be associated with her this year in Santa Ana Woman's club, Mrs. William M. Wells, new president of the organization, Thursday presided at a most enjoyable luncheon in her home, 324 East Seventeenth street.

Flowers in brilliant hues graced the home, but blossoms shading from palest pink to deep rose tones were reserved for the dining room where they were mingled with pale yellow blooms and yellow tapers soaring from candlesticks in the same sunny hue. In exquisite harmony with the color scheme was the corsage bouquet of pink roses with which Mrs. J. D. Watkins, past president, surprised her hostess, Mrs. Wells, her immediate successor in office.

Enthusiasm in the year's work was expressed by the informal chat of club affairs which dominated the afternoon. Everyone seemed eager for the opening meeting, the President's tea on Tuesday, September 26, in the home of Mrs. H. D. McIlvain, 2448 Riverside drive.

The September issue of California Federation News was discussed in detail, and the opinion freely expressed that the staff, Mrs. Albert Launer of Fullerton, editor; Miss Josephine B. Seaman, La Jolla, managing editor (federation president); Mrs. John Cloyes, Santa Ana, circulation manager, and Mrs. Frank Rospaw, Placentia, press chairman, had set a new standard in women's club publications.

Mrs. Wells' guest list included Mesdames R. G. Carman, William Whitehead, James McCracken, R. C. Harris, J. D. Watkins, E. H. Thompson, M. J. Marks and J. G. Limbird.

Club Guest Returns Summer Courtesies Of Jolly Dozen

Mindful of the many enjoyable occasions during the summer when she has been special guest or a substitute at meetings of the Jolly Dozen Bridge club, Mrs. Olive Lopez reversed the situation and on Wednesday acted as hostess, with Jolly Dozen members and a few friends as her guests at luncheon in Garden Inn.

Among the many flowers gracing the Inn, special prominence was given the glowing zinnias from the gardens of Mrs. Eugene Hitt, niece of the hostess. Those in pompon variety graced the luncheon tables where places were marked by pretty cards that later served as bridge score cards. At Mrs. Catherine Wickhorst's place was a tiny traveling bag with a pretty handkerchief from her hostess. Mrs. Wickhorst is leaving soon for Hollywood to make her home, and she and Mrs. Lopez expect to belong to the same parish there.

Bridge tables were placed in the cheerful sun room on the second floor. Miss Bertha Klatt scored high in the contest; Mrs. Joseph Haupt second, and Mrs. Charles Schmiedeberg, third. When prizes were awarded the club members took opportunity to present a handsome vase as a farewell gift to Mrs. Wickhorst.

Mrs. Lopez was assisted throughout the afternoon by her sister, Mrs. George Young, a member of the Jolly Dozen. Other members and guests to whom invitation was extended were Miss Bertha Klatt, Mesdames S. E. Grotty, Catherine Wickhorst, John Rudolph, Jules W. Markel, Joseph Haupt, Elizabeth Dryer, James Colombini, Antone Borchard, Robert Aitkin, Frank Koss, Charles Schmiedeberg, Frank Smith, Mabel Kendall and William Caster. Mrs. Lopez has been spending much of the summer in this city with her sister, Mrs. Young, but expects soon to return to her home in Hollywood.

ANN MEREDITH'S
MIXING BOWL
EAT AND GROW SLIM
Dinner

Tomato-Broth Soup 1 cup
Baked Fresh Spare Ribs with Sauerkraut
1 small baked potato
Sliced tomatoes on plate
Large fresh pear
Baked apple with 1 tsp. sugar, no cream
Clear tea, no sugar

Assuming that a jar of tomato juice cocktail is on tap in your refrigerator, we will proceed to concoct an emergency soup. But first let me tell you, that the lemon juice should be added to the cocktail just before serving—that leaves the seasoned mixture ready for all sorts of dishes. For the broth take—1 beef broth cube to each cup of hot water, 1-2 cup tomato juice to each serving. Salt and pepper, and a dash of garlic salt. Bring to a quick boil, add a tiny bit of butter and pour into soup cups, dusted with celery salt.

Baked Spare Ribs with Kraut
Wash a quart of kraut and put into a baking pan with plenty of black pepper. Over the kraut lay sections of spare ribs, well seasoned. Brown in a hot oven, then add a cup of hot water, cover the pan and lower the heat to 275 degrees. Cook the ribs and kraut at this pace for 3 hours. Both are delicious when done this way. Add water as needed, and turn the ribs so that they will brown evenly.

Use the slow oven for baking a loaf cake that takes a slow heat. Bake pears or apples for dessert at this rate also. Potatoes, rubbed with butter, will bake beautifully in 2 hours.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Eggless, Butterless, Milkless Cake.
Put into a saucepan, the following:

- 1 cup water
- 1 cup brown sugar
- 1-3 cup cooking oil
- 2 cups seeded raisins
- 1-4 tsp. nutmeg
- 1-2 tsp. cloves
- 1 tsp. cinnamon
- 1-2 tsp. salt

Boil together for 3 minutes, then add:

- 1 tsp. soda dissolved in 1-2 cup hot water
- 2 cups flour sifted with 1-2 tsp. baking powder
- 1 cup chopped nut meats.

So far, so good! Now, let's make the changes that turn this into a grand Apple Sauce Cake: Add—

- 1 cup thick apple sauce
- An extra quarter-cup of flour
- 1-4 tsp. cream of tartar in place of baking powder.

Bake the cake in a tube cake pan, slow oven, and frost with a good chocolate fudge frosting.

A thin wedge of cake has an approximate caloric value of 290, and by this I mean an inch wide at the outer edge. Cake is a source of energy and over-weight.

Speaking of overweight—Is your weight increasing? Have your dresses a tendency to crawl up? Do your best silk hose seem short in leg length all-of-a-sudden?

You are getting fat and need to pay strict attention to your diet. Send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and I will mail you a copy of my easy, efficient diet, the SAFE AND SANE REDUCING DIET.

Au revoir till Monday, ANN MEREDITH.

Murder At Bridge

by ANNE AUSTIN author of "THE BLACK PIGEON"
"THE AVENUE HUNTER" "THE MURDER OF DR. GORDON"
"THE MURDER OF DR. GORDON"

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Juanita Selim is murdered at bridge. Possible suspects include Lydia Carr, the maid; John G. Drake, Judge Marshall, Nita's landlord, to whom she paid no rent, and owner of the gun and silencer with which she was shot; Polly Seale and Clive Hammond, Flora Miles, in Nita's closet at the time of the murder reading a note which she thinks is from her husband, Tracey; Janet Raymond, Ralph Hammond, who was engaged to Nita but found out that Dexter Sprague, who did write the note, was her lover, and probably Nita's partner in blackmail. Lydia has been practically cleared, and furnished an alibi for Sprague. Ralph Hammond is no longer under great suspicion. Special investigator Dundee wants now to find out who paid Nita $10,000 since her arrival in Hamilton. Lydia has arranged for Nita's cremation, as instructed, and is given permission to take from the house the dress which Nita chose for her shroud and which Dundee suspects is a wedding dress. Dundee intends to photograph the body in the dress. Lydia says she doesn't know where Nita kept her jewelry, but that it was in some secret place in the house.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXX

It was exactly 12 o'clock when Lydia Carr, accompanied by Detective Collins of the homicide squad carrying a small suitcase, arrived at the district attorney's office.

"I kept my eye on her every minute of the time, to see that there wasn't no shenanigans," Collins informed Dundee and Sanderson importantly, callous to the fact that the maid could hear him. "But I let her bring along everything she said she needed to lay the body out in.... Was that right?"

"Right!" agreed the district attorney, as Dundee opened the suitcase upon Sanderson's desk.

The royal blue velvet dress lay, neatly folded, on top. Dundee shook out its folds. It looked remarkably fresh and new, in spite of the years it had hung in Nita Selim's various closets, preserved for only God knew what tender memories. Perhaps the beautiful little dancer had intended all those years that it should be her shroud....

"Oh, it's lovely!" Penny Crain, who was looking on, cried out involuntarily. "It looks like a French model."

"It's a copy of a French model. You can see by the label on the back of the neck," Lydia answered, her one good eye softening for Penny.

"So it is!" Dundee agreed, and took out his penknife to snip the threads which fastened the white satin, gold-lettered label to the back. "Pierre Model. Copied by Simonson—New York City," he read aloud, and clipped the little square of satin into the envelope containing the murdered woman's will, for temporary safekeeping. "Well, Penny, I'm glad you like the dress, for I'm going to ask you to do the mannikin stunt in it as soon as Carraway arrives with his camera."

Penny turned very pale, but she said nothing in protest, and Dundee continued to unpack the suitcase. His masculine hands looked clumsy as he handled the costume slip and miniature "dancing set"—brassiere and "step-ins"—all matching, of flimsiest flesh-colored chiffon and fine lace. His fingers flinched from contact with the twitch of long, silky black curls....

"She bought all them after we came to Hamilton," Lydia offered in her harsh, flat voice, pointing to the undergarments. "Them black moire pumps and them French stockings are brand new too.... Hundred-gauge silk them stockings are, and never on her feet—"

"Ready for me?" Carraway had appeared in the doorway, carrying his biggest camera and tripod. "Yes, Carraway.... Just the dress, Penny.... I want full-length front, back and side views of Miss Crain wearing this dress. Carraway.... Flashlights, of course. Better take the pictures in Miss Crain's office," Dundee directed. "You stay here, Lydia. I want to talk with you while that job is being done."

"Yes, sir," Lydia answered, and accepted without thanks the chair he offered.

"I suppose you have read the Hamilton Morning News today, Lydia?" Dundee began, when the door had closed upon Penny and Carraway.

"I have!"

"May I have that paper, chief? ... Thanks! Now Lydia, I want you to read again the paragraphs that are headed, New York, May 25, and tell us if the facts are correct."

Lydia accepted the paper and her single eye scanned the following lines obediently:

New York, May 25.

Mrs. Juanita Leigh Selim, who was murdered Saturday afternoon in Hamilton, —, was known along Broadway as Nita Leigh, chorus girl and specialty dancer. Her last known address in New York was No. — West 54th street, where she had a three-room apartment. According to the superintendent, E. J. Black, Miss Leigh, as he knew her, lived there alone except for her maid, Lydia Carr, and entertained few visitors.

Irving Wein, publicity director for Altamont Pictures, when interviewed by a reporter in his rooms at the Cadillac Hotel late today, said that Nita Leigh had been used for "bits" and as a dancing "double" for stars in a number of recent pictures, including "Night Life" and "Boy, Howdy!" both of which have dancing sequences. Musical comedy programs for the last year carry her name only once, in the list of "Ladies of the Ensemble" of the revue "What of It?"

Miss Eloise Pendleton, head mistress of Forsythe-on-the-Hudson mentioned in the dispatch from Hamilton, confirms the report that Mrs. Selim, as she was known there, twice directed the annual Easter musical comedy presented by that fashionable school for young ladies, but could add nothing of interest to the facts given above, beyond asserting that Mrs. Selim had proved to be an unusually competent and popular director of their amateur theatricals.

"Yes, that's correct, as far as it goes," Lydia commented, resentment in her harsh voice as she returned the paper to Dundee.

"Have you anything to add?" Dundee caught her up quickly.

"No, sir!" Lydia shook her head, her lips in a grim line. Then resentment burst through: "They don't have to talk like she was a back number on Broadway, just because she was tired of the stage and going in for movies!"

District Attorney Sanderson took her in hand then, pelting her with questions about Nita's New York "gentlemen friends," but he made no more headway than Dundee.

"We know that Nita Selim was afraid of someone!" Sanderson began again, angrily. "Who was it—someone she'd known in New York, or somebody in Hamilton?"

"I don't know!" Lydia told him flatly.

"But you do know she was living in fear of her life, don't you?" Dundee interposed.

"I—well, yes, I suppose she was," Lydia admitted reluctantly. "But I thought she was just afraid to live out there in that lonesome house away off at the end of nowhere."

"Was she afraid of Dexter Sprague?" Sanderson shot at her.

"Would she have asked him to stay if she'd been afraid of him?"

The HAIL and the LOCUSTS

WHEN Jehovah saw that the five terrible plagues which he had visited upon the Egyptians were not enough to turn the hard-hearted Pharaoh from his cruel course, he directed Moses to bring down a still more deadly plague upon the land.

He stretched out his rod towards the heavens, and immediately it began to thunder, and fiercely the lightning flashed and hailstones crashed down upon the land, killing every man and beast upon which they fell. All of the crops of the fields were laid low, and even the mighty trees were broken down.

Then Pharaoh sent quickly for Moses and promised to humble himself before Jehovah. And as Moses spread out his hands the crash of the elements and the beating of the hailstones ceased. But Jehovah knew that Pharaoh again was dissembling, so he ordered the terrible eighth plague.

An east wind began suddenly to blow, and on its wings there swept a cloud of locusts that darkened the sun. And all over the land of Egypt they settled, devouring every growing blade that the hailstones had left standing, and soon there was not left so much as a green sprout in all the land.

Pharaoh's servants trembled with fright, for they saw that only the Israelites in Goshen were spared from the plague. And they begged their ruler to yield to the pleas of Moses. As soon as he had consented, a strong west wind began to blow, and carried the swarms of locusts far out to sea. But again Pharaoh would not let the people go.

The story of the Hail and the Locusts is from the Old Testament—Exodus—Chapter 2.

The Glory of Solomon

Text: 1 Kings 8:1-11
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Sept. 17.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.

Editor of The Congregationalist

"The glory of Solomon" has become a phrase signifying the greatness of a reign, even as "the wisdom of Solomon" is a tradition among men. Like all traditions there is another side to the story, and the other side came out following the reign of Solomon when it turned out that the people had been oppressed and that they sought relief from their burdens. Here in our lesson, however, we have Solomon presented in the greatest thing in his reign and in the finest character. He has associated himself with the best religious aspiration of his people. He has led them in the building of a temple which should be for them a holy place and a center of their life in our lesson, they have brought plain our lesson, they have brought the Ark of the Covenant that it may have a permanent resting place in its true and proper environment.

To get the full significance of Solomon's place in the building of the temple we must consider the whole history of Israel up to this period, from the time of the escape to Egypt and the period of wandering in the wilderness. During all that period of wandering there had been a lack of national and religious consolidation. Saul had failed as king, and Samuel, though he had been the greatest prophet since Moses, had failed to win the loyalty and support of the nation.

The demand for a king was in a measure a reflection of the fact that the people did not feel that Samuel had given them adequate leadership. The period of Saul's reign, in which David was involved, was also one of unsettlement.

David himself seemed to represent for a time the leadership of the discontented. But when David became king the evidence of a strong hand in the affairs of state was immediately evident, and though in his tasks of consolidating the state David was so essentially a man of blood that he was not permitted to build the temple, he developed a national strength in which Solomon's plans, which he inherited, could be fulfilled.

The full significance of the lesson does not appear in the lesson itself. We must go beyond the lesson to consider the whole story of the building of Solomon's temple—the record of devotion and sacrifice on the part of the people, manifested in their gifts, the fine spirit of craftsmanship that inspired the workers, and the outpouring of high and noble devotion in which the temple was dedicated.

Particular reference should be made to Solomon's prayer at the dedication of the temple, which, even if it stood alone, would justify his great place as a man of high aspiration and wisdom.

Perhaps we should conceive of men in their noblest and finest moments, and should think of their sins and excesses only as temporary betrayals of the ideal that they have proved in their hearts and in their finest acts. Judged from the highest and noblest things in his career Solomon stands, and will always stand, as a sovereign of glory and wisdom who sought to establish in the nation the true and essential place of religion.

THE KNYMIES

STORY BY MAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KING

The little pet pup seemed to know that it was putting on a show. Each time it leaped through Duncy's hoop, it wagged its tail a bit.

Then of Pol Parrot shouted, "Try to make the dog stand way up high. Then, also, tell it to sit down and it will promptly sit."

"I know it will! I trained the pup. Why, look! Right now it's sitting up." Then Goldy added, "My, that's cute. Here, puppy, come to me!"

"I want to snuggle you real tight. Don't worry! You will be all right." The pup then crawled into her lap, as comfy as could be.

"Aw," Scouty cried. "It's all tired out. You've played with it too much, no doubt. Let's let it sleep and all find something else that we can do."

"That's fair enough," said Goldy. "I will sing a little lullaby. The rest of you can have your fun. I'll shortly follow you."

Then Windy asked, "Why go away? Right here's a real nice place to stay. There's Tubby, the old basket cat. We'll have some fun with it."

"Don't anybody pull its tail. 'Twould only make it loudly wail. Why, I have heard that teasing makes a nice cat have a fit."

Then to the basket Windy went, where quite a little while was spent in coaxing the old pussy cat to jump out to the ground.

"We want to see the tricks you know," said Doty. "Aw, come on, you're slow. There's no need to be frightened. Don't just sit and look around."

At last the pokey cat jumped out. Then all the bunch heard Duncy shout, "For goodness sakes, what a surprise! Four kittens I can see."

"I'll bet they love to jump and run. Here's where we have a lot of fun. I'd like to pet all four of them. They're cute as they can be."

ADULT EDUCATION PROGRAM TONIGHT

The first program of a series to be sponsored this year by the adult education department of the Santa Ana city schools will be presented tonight over KREG at 8 o'clock. This program will be under direction of Mrs. Golden Weston, director and principal of the department.

These programs will be presented daily except Sunday for the purpose of publicizing work done by the day and evening classes of the adult education department.

Tonight's broadcast will comprise an explanatory address by Mrs. Weston relative to the objects and aims of the department. W. G. Axworthy, cellist and former KREG artist will play several numbers during the broadcast.

SYMPHONIC POEM TO BE FEATURED

The Symphonic poem "The Moldau" by Smetana, as played by Edward Morike and members of the Berlin State Opera orchestra will be a feature of this evening's dinner hour presentation by Cal-Baden at 5:45 from KREG.

This treat will be the second of a cycle of six symphonic poems entitled "My Fatherland" with which Friedrich Smetana, the founder of the National School of Bohemian music, sought to glorify the country of his birth. At the time this work was completed, the composer was hopelessly and totally deaf from a malady which later caused his death in an insane asylum. The Moldau is the principal river in Bohemia and in this tone-picture Smetana describes the course of the river and the country through which it flows.

WILL BROADCAST CHURCH SERVICE

Two services of the Calvary church will be broadcast over radio KREG Sunday, according to an announcement by the Rev. Frank Lindgren, pastor.

At the morning service his topic will be "Sufferers and the Second Coming of Christ." Special music by the choir will be presented under direction of Leland Green. At the evening service a half hour of gospel songs will precede the sermon on "Finding Christ."

KREG NOES

Ray De Ofan's broadcast to night from KREG at 7 o'clock will comprise answers to questions by listeners, and will disclose some interesting things about well-known radio personalities, including Little Jack Little, Guy Lombardo, Tony Romano, Al Pearce and the relations of Donald Novis, who are also heard on the radio.

The Texas Ramblers' return to KREG met with popular acclaim, according to program officials, who stated that telephone calls of pleasure at their return were received in great quantities.

Starting tonight, KREG will present a half-hour of selected classics from 10:30 to 11 p. m. daily, except Sunday, for music lovers in Southern California. This is in answer to requests for music of this type in place of the large amount of popular music usually scheduled at this time of night.

After an extended vacation, Mary Burke King will return to KREG Monday morning at 10:30 with the first broadcast of a new series of book reviews. The books to be reviewed Monday was not known at the time of going to press.

Another new artist, or rather two new artists, will make their debut on KREG Monday morning at 11 o'clock. Ned Lewis, a pleasing young vocalist of Whittier, accompanied by Hal McCormac of Santa Ana, will offer the first of a group of 15-minute programs. These will be presented each Monday and Friday at this time, and on Wednesday evenings at 7:30. Favorite ballads will be featured.

The health talks by Joseph Ames Henessey, under the auspices of the Protective Diet League, which have been scheduled at 9:35 a. m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday, on KREG, will be broadcast at 10 a. m. beginning Monday.

Due to unavoidable circumstances which may be blamed on Primo Carnera, Mark Kelly, sports authority, scheduled at 8:15 p. m. Saturdays on KREG will not be heard tonight. He will be back again with his regular broadcast next week.

Still another new artist in the personage of Harry Layton, vocalist, will be heard at 6:45 tonight. Layton presented several programs over KREG several years ago, and is returning for another series of broadcasts. However, his subsequent "appearances" before the "mike" will be subject to the approval of listeners, who are urged to write their comments on his presentation to the program director of KREG. He will offer groups of new and old favorites, including in the first group to night, "Little Old Church in the Valley," "The Rosary," "Sweetheart Darlin'," and others. He will be accompanied by Edith Hart.

MURDER BRIDGE

by ANNE AUSTIN

at me, hammer and tongs, Lydia answered. "He was in the house not more'n two minutes, all told, and when I figured he was safe, I went upstairs with you to show you the presents I'd give Nita after she burnt me, to prove I'd forgive her."

"Why didn't you tell me, Lydia? Why did you protect Sprague? I know you don't like him, Dundee puzzled.

"I wasn't thinking about him," Lydia told him flatly. "I was thinking about Nita. I didn't want any scandal on her."

"Are you prepared to swear Sprague had time to do nothing but go up to the bedroom and get his bag?"

"I am!"

When Lydia and Carraway had left together, Dundee rose and addressed the district attorney:

"I'm going out to the Selim house now, to look for that secret hiding place where Roger Crain kept his securities, and which Judge Marshall evidently displayed to Nita, as one of the charms of the house when she 'rented' it."

"Why not simply telephone Judge Marshall and ask him where and what it is?" Sanderson asked reasonably.

"Do you think he'd tell?" Dundee retorted. "The old boy's no fool. Even if he didn't kill Nita himself and hide the gun there, my question would throw him into a panic of fear lest one of his best friends had done just that. . . . No, I'll find it myself, if it's all right with you!"

There was a knock at the door. "Come in! . . . All finished Carraway? . . . Fine! I'd like to see the prints as soon as possible, and now I'd like for you to go over to the morgue with Lydia, and wait there until she has the body dressed in these clothes, and the hair done according to the instructions Mrs. Selim left. . . . I'll leave the posing to you, but I want a full-length picture as well as a head portrait."

As Lydia work-roughened, knuckly hands were returning the funeral clothes to the suitcase, another question occurred to Dundee:

"Lydia, did you know, before I questioned you at the Miles home yesterday, that Sprague had returned for that bag he had left in the bedroom upstairs?"

Her scarred cheek flushed livid, but the maid answered with defiant honesty: "Yes, I did! He spoke to me through my basement window just before you came running down to talk to me. He'd sneaked back, but he could tell from seeing you outside that he was there, and he asked me to go up and get the bag and set it outside the kitchen door for him. I said, 'I wouldn't do it; it was too risky.'"

"Then you were pretending to be asleep when I entered your room?"

"Yes, I was! But I had been asleep before Mr. Sprague called me. While you was hammering at me about Nita burnin my face I heard Mr. Sprague open the kitchen door. He had a key Nita had given him. He didn't hardly make any noise at all, but I heard it, because I was listening for it. . . . You'd left the door to the basement stairs open, and my door, too, so I heard him."

"Did you hear him come down?"

"Yes, I did! There's a board on the backstairs that squeaks, and I heard it plain, while you was still

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—(UP)—Wheat soared almost 4 points to a bushel today as speculative buying orders poured into the pit from all parts of the world. Inflation sentiment was rampant as the dollar broke again before a sharp rise in foreign currencies. It combined with bad crop reports from Canada to whip up an urgent demand. At the close wheat was 3 1/2 higher, corn was up 2 to 3 1/4 and oats were 1 to 1 1/4 higher.

RAILROADS TO INCREASE SPEED

Genuine interest has been shown in the recently published news that the railroads are planning to greatly cut down the time it takes the trans-continental trains to make their journey. According to plans, the trip from the Coast to Chicago will take only 36 hours, as contrasted with 61 hours at present. This would make 56 hours to New York, even if the speed is not decreased between New York and Chicago. That is better than the time now made between the Coast and Chicago.

The railroads have been slow in making progress in cutting down the speed in trans-continental travel, being outplayed by the automobile and bus. They have failed largely to take advantage of the advantage given them when the government granted them huge tracts of land, and the iron rails, which held possibilities of great speed.

One can drive to San Francisco as quickly by car as he can go by train, and unless there is a special rate on, more cheaply. The train has the advantage of the crossing being a private right of way, thus putting the burden of watchfulness upon the operator of the motor car. The railroad's progress has been delayed by the tremendous weight of the engines and cars, the curves and grades. We recall that a number of years ago Henry Ford lightened the cars on his own railroad, in order to save carrying so much weight and to save expense. It seems that the other roads are now following his lead.

The tremendous amount of saving by cutting down the weight is shown that advance plans of the trans-continental train list the weight of their new, streamlined train at 80 tons, whereas a single Pullman car will weigh this amount. It is claimed by the Union Pacific, which will operate this new trans-continental unit, that it can not only cut the time of the motor bus in half, but the train will be slightly cheaper to run.

Europe has led the way in this field of high-speed transportation, with a train from Berlin to Hamburg, which travels 90 miles an hour. It seems that the American railroads are at last beginning to see they do have certain advantages over the automobile and bus in the field of passenger transportation, in which field they have witnessed a 70 per cent decline in revenue since 1920. They are looking to see wherein they have failed to capitalize their advantages, and "more speed by rail" seems to be the order of the day.

ORANGE FIRM EXEMPTED FROM PAYMENT OF SALES TAX

The Register wishes to add its word of approval to the decision of the state board of equalization on the exemption of the Anaconda Wire and Cable company of Orange from the payment of the state sales tax.

This company has been a very important industrial enterprise in this county, and has encountered a great deal of hindrance in its efforts to do business, since this sales tax went into effect. Out-of-state companies were able to sell in this state without having to pay the sales tax, and it worked great havoc and injury on the business of this firm.

The board issued a brief statement in reference to the act, saying: "Transactions as outlined by the officers of the company were held to be interstate commerce and hence are exempt from the payment of the sales tax."

While we do not know the legal phases of this matter, and of course we would not maintain that the Board of Equalization could have the right to exempt anyone from the operations of the law, who really came within the operations of the law, yet if this company is outside of the law by virtue of the fact that its sales are outside the state and affected by interstate commerce, we are certainly happy, for it is helpful to us all in this county.

This decision will remove from this company the necessity of removing its plant to some other state in order to compete in the market in California. Hence it will insure the workers in the plant of the retention of their jobs. This means a great deal in the lives of these people, and will retain this large amount of consuming power in the county of Orange.

COMMON COLDS AND DIET

Good news has come again to the people of the United States, in the form of an announcement from Dr. A. F. O. Germann, Cleveland physician, that common colds can be prevented by a basic diet.

One of the most formidable enemies of even and constant economic production is the simple common cold. Hundreds of thousands of days are lost each year by the absence from work of various laborers who are afflicted with this ailment. Possibly it is not as noticeable and as dangerous in this section of the country as in the Middle West and Eastern section, but it is not altogether unknown.

According to Dr. Germann, a diet of fruits, vegetables and milk contains carotene, a food substance, which aids not only in preventing, but in throwing off colds. It helps to prevent them from starting by strengthening the tissue which lines the nose and throat, and he declares, is also believed to help the blood to throw off infections which gain entrance to the body, and helps to cure the colds.

Those who have been affected by the common cold and know how disagreeable it can be, will be greatly cheered by this news. Not only do we hope the words of this physician are true, from the standpoint of the economic waste involved, which may possibly be cut to a fraction of its former figure, but also for the personal well-being of the citizens do we hope it proves to be correct.

HOW DOES HE DO IT?

We want to commend our telegraph editor on his ability to distinguish between different revolts in Cuba. As we noticed, he had a heading in our last night's paper: "New Revolt Breaks Out in Cuba."

It takes an expert to tell whether it is a new revolt or whether it is the old one, or just another phase of the present one. You have to watch these revolts in all these countries, and particularly in Cuba, to find out whether it is "again" or "still." These revolts are continuous and regular, after they get started. And they are like an eight-day clock: they won't stop until they are through. It is a habit that they refuse to break.

But some of these revolts and revolutions, very fortunately, are bloodless. The people in power must go into their offices to carry on. Those out of power surround the building with high-powered ordnance and machine guns. The people inside look out of the window and see there is a revolt on. They take out their handkerchiefs, wave them and there is a truce. They go out, and the fellows with the guns go in, but usually leave their guns on the outside. Somebody else will proceed to do the same thing on them the day following, or possibly on the afternoon of the same day.

Was it Mark Twain who said we needed one of the Latin countries, that pulled off one of these revolutions at certain periods, for the amusement of the tourists, so they could understand the nature of the revolution?

We still insist that our telegraph editor is keeping close watch of it. We are very confident that his ability along this line has been developed very largely by very strenuous application on daily solving the cross-word puzzles.

FOOTBALL SEASON BEGINS

Wives and mothers are beginning to tear their hair, for there is beginning the season for the male population when its members go temporarily insane on the subject of football. A woman cannot get a word in about needing new fall clothes, or, if she starts, she realizes soon that the price of a new hat or dress must take a back seat to the price of the ducat for the football game.

Most women doubtless feel that it is all a great deal of nonsense, about who is going to play for Santa Ana High School or Santa Ana Junior College, or what Stanford will do with a new coach, or what will happen when U. S. C. meets California. We believe there are very few women who really enjoy football for its own sake—their only recompense being a chance to exhibit their fall clothes, or to watch the individual members of the crowd at the Bowl or Coliseum.

But in order to apologize for the men folk, we feel we must chronicle the opening of the football season. Already the high school and junior college locally have begun their drills; the Pacific Coast conference goes into session today, and next week-end sees the initial games of the season. And from then on until New Year's day, try to get the men in a party talking about anything else. It's a great time of the year. We say: "Let's have more and better football seasons, but with reduced prices to the big games."

On Husband-Calling

Christian Science Monitor

With the holding of a contest at Chicago's Century of Progress and the resultant award of a suitable trophy to the winner, one of the oldest of housewifery accomplishments receives more or less official recognition as a competitive art or sport. The title of champion husband-caller was duly proclaimed, contended for and won, the award going to an entrant from Illinois.

It was to be expected that the prize-winning husband-caller should be from the ranks of the agricultural helpmeets. No vocation lends itself so readily to proficiency in husband-calling as that of rural housewife, and the larger the farm, apparently, the better are the aspirant's chances for victory. The winner at Chicago has stated that the far reaches of the family domain are well beyond range of the ordinary dinner bell.

However, with the definite recognition of husband-calling as a form of competitive endeavor, it seems not quite just to wives as a whole that participation should be limited to those fortunate enough to dwell upon large farms. Just as track events include the long and middle-distance events and the dashes, so husband-calling should have its various phases, each demanding an equal display of adeptness and each arousing an equal amount of spectator interest.

Why not husband-calling contests for apartment housewives, with the low but penetrating voice as the deciding issue? Surely the summoning of a husband from his basement garage tinkering to his eighth floor suite with the minimum of annoyance to the neighbors is a feat as deserving of recognition as the farm wife's two-mile event. And suburbanite wives, whose injunctions to trainward-dashing husbands to bring home a spool of thread are productive not of a spool of thread but of a loaf of bread, should not be denied their chance at a trophy.

The opportunities for variation are boundless, with even husband-calling relay races not beyond the range of possibility. Nor, now that the Century of Progress has impressed the seal of sanction upon this newest type of contest, need it be limited to the fair sex.

Into the Stratosphere

San Francisco Chronicle

Russian scientists have joined in the efforts that other nations are making to explore the stratosphere, that region of rarefied air eight to ten miles in the heavens. A larger balloon than that used by Professor Piccard in his expedition is to be sent aloft for a forty-hour trip.

The secret of the cosmic ray is the scientific goal of the enterprise, but there also is a material vision in the experimenters' eyes. Professor Piccard, reporting that the stratosphere is absolutely calm, said he believed feasible to develop an airplane that can reach that height and navigate safely at 600 miles per hour, safe from storm and obstruction.

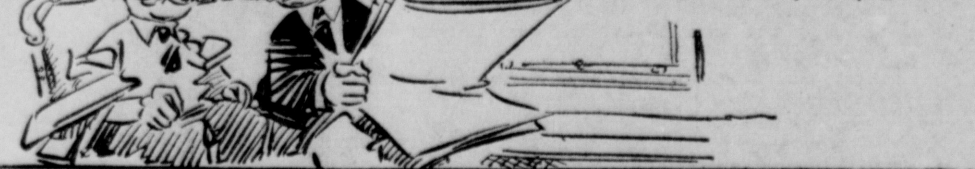

If this could be done it would make possible a week-end trip from San Francisco to Europe with a few hours' stopover. Such travel as is suggested seems fraught with insurmountable difficulties yet would be no greater step from the present than was the achievement of the Wright Brothers early in this century.

More Truth Than Poetry

THOSE CONFOUNDED ASTRONOMERS

When star-gazing savants assemble

Extremely uneasy I feel—

In fact I am all of a tremble

Till I know what they're going to reveal.

For they may by some chance have detected

A comet of gigantic birth.

Whose flame-trailing course is directed

Toward our puny and fragile old earth.

We surely have plenty of worries

Without looking up to the sky

To view every comet that hurries

Through the uttermost depths of the sky

And wondering how it is headed

And what will become of us all

If its super-hot mass is embedded

In our tiny terrestrial ball.

Which it merely would nudge in its flame-lighted flight

And plunge us forever in Stygian night.

This earth may be riven asunder

When minutes, or aeons have passed,

But I don't like to sit here and wonder

Just how long it is going to last.

It may be today or tomorrow

That some accident ends its career,

But no trouble I'm going to borrow

Till the day of the smashup is here.

This may be any time, I am free to admit,

But the news in advance will not help us a bit.

Thoughts On Modern Life

SHOULD FORD FALTER?

Henry Ford has always been a Lone Eagle among American business men.

He has damned the bankers when other business men deferred to them. He has raised wages when other business men insisted it meant suicide. He has fought the labor unions while more than meeting their demands on many counts.

And now, at the moment I write this, he is still aloof from the general business swing toward code signing.

The question is: Should the Lone Eagle fly with the Blue Eagle?

I do not know what has been going on in Henry Ford's mind. It is surely not reluctance to follow the general practice respecting wages and hours, for he has always led rather than followed in this field.

I repeat that I do not know what has been going on in Henry Ford's mind. But of this I feel sure, the national recovery drive needs everything of prestige and moral support that the Henry Fords of the nation can give it.

I do not say that American busness men should declare a moratorium on thinking and forget every word but "yes" in their vocabulary. It will not serve the economic future of the nation to have business men refrain from pointing out what may seem to them flaws in the details of codes and commands forged in Washington.

But we are fighting against time! The destiny of the American economic order is at stake. Another winter looms on the horizon. And, if it is not to be a winter of dire discomfiture, haste must be made in stabilizing the national psychology with an infusion of confidence and underscoring the economic life of the nation with more employment and a greater distribution of purchasing power.

The government must stand ready to reconsider and readjust detailed aspects of the various codes in the light of the experience of the immediate future. But with that assured, business men everywhere, whether it be Ford or the keeper of the fish market, are morally obligated to go to bat. Copyright, 1933, McClure Newspaper Syn.

Our Children

By Angelo Patri

A WORKING PARTNERSHIP

A child's father and mother are his first, his most constant, his most impressive teachers. He will have others in his lifetime but none will ever undo what father and mother have done. Their work lies deep on the foundations of the child's character, colors his thinking, tones his voice and touches his manners. What they instill cannot be taken out. It remains to weigh his every decision, direct his every step.

When one thinks of this the responsibility of father and mother appears in its right place, first in importance, first in authority, first in influence. Anything that would tend to make this tremendous power go astray must be anxiously avoided. One great danger lies in the divided spirit and action of the parents. Either they work together for the good of the child or they fight each other for his destruction. Those are hard words, but they must stand. A divided household means the destruction of the children.

Division even in little things must be avoided. Children are quick to feel one's thought. If mother feels that father is wrong about letting the child ride on his foot or stay up a few minutes past his bedtime you can be certain the child knows it. He will cast sidelong glances at his mother, anxiety will tinge his words. By and by he will use one parent against the other, the beginning of game and that is the beginning of the end where he is concerned.

It takes two parents to bring up a family but the two must pull together, if not in love for each other, in love for the child. It usually happens that one brings the other.

A household is not always divided by opposing parents. Often as not it is some relative that does the dividing. Grandmother or auntie who makes her home with the younger people, grandfather or uncle who have come to spend their last days under the protection of this home, bring this trouble upon the child. Not knowingly, but willfully, but because of their great lack of understanding. They feel alone and covet the love and friendliness of children and they attempt to buy it by showing kindness, tenderness and sympathy towards the child in his difficulties.
